Resources for the Journey Forward:
Seeking Answers from Medical and Counseling Professionals*

— Catholic NaPro technology practitioner recommendation: Monica Eggleston Monica is up in northern Idaho (Moscow) but can do a lot via Telehealth. She offers a Post Miscarriage Consultation.

— Catholic practitioner and Creighton model teacher: Ashley Jensen
Ashley works in Meridian, Idaho. She has a lot of experience helping women with fertility/miscarriage/pregnancy challenges from a Catholic perspective. Although Ashley is not a doctor, she might be a wonderful place to start for finding answers and she works closely with a physician in Utah who offers telehealth services.

— St. Paul VI Institute (home of NaProTechnology): Located in Nebraska, this wonderful institute helps couples work with their bodies toward achieving pregnancy. They offer a whole work up to see what might not be working as it should and then work with husband and wife toward helping their bodies toward achieving pregnancy, utilizing methods approved by the Church.

— Catholic Counselor (Licensed Clinical Social Worker, Catholic Deacon and spiritual director, and founder of the Catholic Counseling Agency): Deacon Jack Roland

Deacon Jack is located in California for in person appointments, but also offers FaceTime/Zoom type appointments to individuals and families in Idaho.

Website/contact information:

catholiccounselingagency.com or call (916) 792-9797, (916) 847-9052, or Bob at (916) 871-9723 to schedule a FaceTime type consult to see if long distance counseling might be a good fit for you.

Praying God will guide you to the resources that are best for you, that you will find any answers you need, and that you will feel confident in your knowledge and options as you seek to be open to new life and surrender to God's plans for your family.
